The Financial Women International (FWI) Foundation is dedicated to the advancement of financial services industry professionals, by providing tools, resources and opportunities that will benefit the individual, the industry, and the community at large.

The FWI Foundation was created in 1973, to serve as the educational and research arm of FWI. Committed to professional growth, the FWI Foundation plays an instrumental role in fostering educational development for those working in and with the financial services industry.

In its more than 25 years of existence, the FWI Foundation has become an invaluable resource for financial industry professionals, helping them gain the knowledge that will lead them to the next level in their careers. Affordable, innovative programs are a hallmark of the FWI Foundation. From full-day seminars that hone presentation skills or develop leadership skills, to two-hour workshops that fine tune delegation, negotiation or networking skills, the FWI Foundation has a program created especially with the financial services industry professional in mind. These programs are available to individuals, groups and companies.

Recent years have seen the FWI Foundation expand its focus of activities. "Women At The Top," an ongoing study, is identifying segments within the financial services industry in which women are making strides. Information derived from this study is a useful tool for those considering a career in the financial services industry. The FWI Foundation is taking an unprecedented step in its history by initiating an outreach program for professionals who want information and want to avail themselves of the base of knowledge of those working within the financial services industry.

The FWI Foundation is a non-profit, 501(c)3 corporation, governed by a board of ten trustees.
